Designers and end users alike look to Geiger to help them achieve greater productivity, flexible collaboration, improved office ecology, integrated technology and efficient space utilization. Furniture crafted by Geiger is legendary for the length of its typical useful life: installations of more than 20 years are not uncommon. Timelessly beautiful, Geiger transcends short-lived trends, with classic designs as relevant now as they were when introduced. Today, Geiger works with architects and designers to create productive, high-value workspaces tailored for the professions, whether in law, finance, education or administration.
In 1964, John Geiger parlayed a passion for woodworking into a hand-crafted furniture business. Along with four craftsmen, Geiger built each piece of furniture by hand, one office at a time. His love of and respect for the woods he used, combined with his appetite for perfection, endure today in the same rigorous standards set nearly 50 years ago.
Geiger understands the specialized needs of government spaces and the designers who create them. We work hard to make your selection, specification and ordering process easy, because we know what it takes to design successful private and public spaces. We come by this understanding honestly. Since 1964, Geiger has collaborated primarily with legal, financial, education and administration professionals, providing the right combinations of storage, technology and work solutions. As part of Herman Miller, the company with the largest installed base of furniture within the federal government, Geiger offers the same calibre of specially trained dealer and customer-service support.

Geiger was one of the world’s first companies to develop water-based finishes, to help eliminate volatile organic compounds (VOCs) emissions in offices. Geiger’s casegoods, multi-purpose seating and stacking chairs offered on GSA Schedule are all certified by the independent GreenGuard Environmental Institute. Geiger furniture also can contribute to LEED credits for construction waste management, recycled content, certified wood and more.
Geiger continues to lighten its environmental footprint. Geiger’s primary manufacturing facility in Atlanta sends zero manufacturing waste to landfills. Geiger Atlanta also has earned FSC Chain of Custody Certification, making it an FSC Supplier of casegoods with optional FSC-certified veneers and core materials. As part of Herman Miller, all Geiger operations are powered entirely by green electrical energy, which is harnessed from sunlight, wind or water flow and placed into the electrical grid.
