Framework Collection

DESIGNED BY BASSAMFELLOWS

The exploration of traditional Scandinavian household linens that inspired BassamFellows' Solene Collection was such a bountiful source of inspiration, its structural grids and crisp cottons carry through to the duo's latest collaboration with Geiger Textiles. The five patterns that make up the Framework Collection are deeper and more complex than Solene's summery weaves—from the strong graphic depictions of Gridwork, Irregular Grid, and Pantile, to the rich colors of Iota and Button-Up. The grid structure common to all six patterns varies in scale from the textured chenille of Iota to the large, interlocking plaid of Gridwork. Each construction combines thick and thin yarns to create a beautiful, three-dimensional irregularity that catches the interplay of light, all while maintaining a level of performance appropriate for contract.

BUTTON-UP

A plain weave reminiscent of men's shirting, Button-Up strengthens the foundational offer of Geiger Textiles. Its slightly irregular quality results from the three-color random striae warp, and its soft hand from its content, which is 58-percent recycled cotton from apparel waste.

GRIDWORK

A fresh take on a traditional plaid, Gridwork layers multiple yarn colors to create its large-scale, interlocking grid pattern. Comprised of 100-percent post-consumer recycled polyester, it not only contributes to the aesthetics of a project, but also to efforts to achieve LEED certification. It's also bleach-cleanable to help keep it beautiful even in high-use applications.

IRREGULAR GRID

Named for its irregular grid-like pattern, Irregular Grid falls between the large-scale pattern of Gridwork and the clean graphic of Pantile. PANTILE

Pantile is woven to create an irregular, two-tone, dimensional checked pattern, accented with bold pops of color. It is produced by the same Italian mill that weaves Milaner, Capri, and Sommar, creating a hand-crafted look using modern loom technology. This common origin gives Pantile a similar hand-woven look and feel as those textiles.
